2007 Annual Report to the Community

“Ensuring a System of Support for Members of Our Community.”
From the Chair:

Livingston County’s health and human service agencies have a well deserved reputation for working collaboratively to address community needs and problems. Indeed, we are so used to working together that we sometimes don’t realize how unusual this is, or how powerful our collective efforts and voice can be. During 2007 we took a number of steps to ensure that our community and its leaders understand the impact that our collaborative efforts have in our community.

As one example, last Spring HSCB members met with our legislative delegation to discuss the impact of the state’s ongoing budget problems on our community and a small number of those directors also participated on a panel discussion with Governor Jennifer Granholm. Our consistent message was that our citizens are struggling, and the community agencies and resources are at a breaking point. We encouraged our leaders to find comprehensive long-term solutions to the state’s budget problem; solutions which could maintain the critical services our citizens need during these difficult times. We are pleased that our legislators were among those who worked to find compromises that eventually led to a resolution of the budget impasse.

We engaged in several other outreach initiatives as well. The HSCB met with media representatives to discuss the “Kids Count” data published by the Michigan League for Human Services. We also published two fact sheets on health and human service needs as part of an ongoing series, and are pleased to announce that a HSCB website will be launched in early 2008.

Our workgroups and committees continue their impressive work despite the challenges posed by the state’s lingering economic problems. This report summarizes some of the results of our collaborative and I encourage you to review them. In response to emerging needs in our community, we formed two new ad-hoc workgroups in 2007: Suicide Prevention and Basic Needs. Both will issue reports in 2008. The Senior Needs Assessment workgroup will also submit its report to the HSCB this year.

Finally, as my two-year term as HSCB chair draws to a close, I would like to thank HSCB members, and the more than 150 members of HSCB workgroups and committees who share their time and talent to make collaboration successful in Livingston County. What we do together does make a difference and we are fortunate to be a part of a community that understands the power of collaboration.

What is the Purpose of the Human Services Collaborative Body?

The Livingston HSCB started in 1989 and was officially recognized as the county Multi-Purpose Collaborative Body by the state and county Board of Commissioners in 1995. Now, referred to as Community Collaboratives by the state, the HSCB is comprised of 26 appointed members that work together to coordinate health and human services across systems. The HSCB also:
- develops strategies and programs to meet current and future needs
- fiscally manages state-funded collaborative initiatives
- monitors the effectiveness and efficiency of collaborative projects

The HSCB does this work through established committees and workgroups which have specific goals and objectives to complete. The HSCB and most workgroups meet monthly and consist of representatives from public and nonprofit organizations, businesses, and interested residents of the county.
